Course Description

- Grievance Handling - Would you like to know how shop stewards or committee persons investigate grievances, present them to management and write them up properly? Would you like to learn how by practicing these essential steps using actual workplace situations and contract language? Have you considered running for this position? Or are you simply interested in learning more about how the union handles workplace issues? If yes, this one day introductory course is for you. Also discussed is how the role of the workplace representative is so critical to building our union strength. As well, participants learn about the resources the National Union provides.
